Suits, Coats and Dresses Marked at Drastic Prices for the Ouickest Sort of Selling

These sales comprise by all odds the greatest values in women's and misses' plain and fancy Suits, misses' and women's wool and silk Dresses and Coats that Youngstown has seen this season.

Style merchandise is never carried over from one season to another at Fordyce's. Consequently all these comparatively new garments, these really beautiful dresses, these superbly tailored suits, thes 'delightfully "different" coats are ready to go at less than you would expect for exclusive apparel. You can select a suit, coat or dress at a saving of a third to a half of their former prices and in many instances where there are only one or two garments of a style the reductions are even greater.

USE BRUSH IN THE KITCHEN

egetables Cleaned With That Imple ment May Be Served With Assurance of Perfect Safety.

One of the best ways to wash vegetables is to provide yourself with a stout little brush, which should be kept in a convenient place by the sink. With this you will find the work of washing the vegetables will be made a great deal easier. Then there is something that concerns house brushes of all kinds. When they are in need of cleaning, put tepid water into a pan, sufficient in quantity to cover the bristles of the brush, but not to reach the backs, which perhaps would be injured by the water. Add to the water three tablespoonfuls of ammonia for each quart of water, then put the brushes in to soak for ten minutes. Rinse them well in cold water and set them to dry, with bristles downward. In washing hair brushes be careful not to use soap. Instead. dissolve a piece of soap in warm water and allow the bristles of the brush to stand in the water. The bristles will become white and clean. When allowed to dry you will find that the bristles will be just as stiff and firm as ever they were and the backs of the brushes will not have been hurs by soap getting down into the places where the bristles are set into the backs. An old tooth brush is a pretty good thing to save. It may often o found very useful in the kitchen around clean-up times, in getting into little niches where ordinary brush or cloth would not reach.

CASSEROLE A GOOD FRIEND

Especially Valuable in Its Usefulness In the Making Over of Joints of Preceding Days.

When the making over of cold meats into warm dishes is in question consider the casserole. By its use even the smallest scraps of meat, veg etables, sauces and gravies can be used up. Not a spoonful of anything edible need go to waste. When the Sunday foint of roast beef has been served hot and then cold make a delicious lunch or supper of the remains if there is insufficient for a dinner. In the bottom of the casse role put sliced potatoes, a carrot and couple of onions, small, chopped, and if on hand, a few mushrooms. Over this pour the gravy left from the meat or, if this has been thrown away, add water seasoned with pepper and salt. Put on the cover and bake in a slow oven for an hour. Half an hour be fore serving lay the cold meat on top of the vegetables, replace the cover and continue the baking. Cold roast of lamb will prove a very tasty dish cooked in a casserole with peas. The peas placed in layers in the casserole alternately with slice: of the lamb. The liquor in which the peas were boiled is thickened and poured over, the casserole being set in the oven until the meat has heated through. Served with mashed potatoes, an appetizing meal is the re-When cold peas ar other vege tables are on hand a white sauce can be poured over, or any gravy that may be available. work are back of the lectures of D. D. Harsh of Minerva, who will be one of the speakers during the two days of the coming Farmers' Institute. "They are 100 per cent of that experience, and 100 per cent of that experience is from the farm," says, Mr. Harsh in commenting on his talks. "How to Build Up a Run Down Farm." "Breeding and Care of Horses," "The Dairy Cow," and "Care of Fruit," indicate the range of subjects on which Mr. Harsh will speak. "What Hay Shall We Grow," "Corn Culture" and "Homemaking" are other matters which he will discuss. He will also have a brief discussion of "The County Fair."

"Better crops, better fruit, better stock, have been the result of adopting modern methods on my farm. Better money has been the result of better crops. That is the whole matter in a nutshell," says Mr. Harsh. Greenford farmers' institute December 31 and January 1. Attend.

NO MORE MAIL ON FLOOR, T

Receptacle Catches Letters as They

Fall Through Slot in Door. A simple and yet convenient device that will be found useful in offices has been patented by a Boston man. This is a letter catcher that can be affixed to the office door and will catch the mail as it is dropped through the slot. The device is a net fastened to a circular rim of metal or wood. Two hooks, shaped something like the letter "S," hold the frame in place on the door, one end of the hooks holding the rim and the other end passing through the letter drop. With this receptacle in position the mail drops into it instead of on the floor, and is in no danger of being torn when the door is opened in the morning, as is some times the case where there is a livine pile of letters lying in the way. Another advantage of the contrivance is that it can be put up or taken down in an instant and does not scratch or deface the door in any way. It need not hang ered unsightly or in the way, but can be hooked into place when the owner leaves the office at night.-Washington Star.

A Mystery of the Sea.

Of all the secrets held by the flotsam and letsam of many years, none is stranger than that of the beeswax of the Oregon beaches. Long before the white man came to the great Northwest by ship or prairie-schooner, vessels from the Orient had skirted the coast. Bits of wreckage have told the story of Chinese junks gone to pieces on the shore, but the most curious evidence of this Eastern traffic has been found on the Oregon coast south of the Columbia River. Mr. Clarke gives an account of this treas ure-trove in his "Pioneer Days." When Lewis and Clark made their famous expedition, they learned that the native Indians of Oregon had for many years found lumps of beeswax on the sandy shores.

Beeswax is practically indestructible in water, but these pieces had pounded in the surf until they were black and battered almost beyond recognition. In 1814 one Henry, engaged in the fur-trade, wrote an account of finding masses of this wax. The pieces were scattered over a wide stretch of coast, and were now covered, now uncovered by the blowing sand. Some of the lumps were softened into all shapes and sizes by the heat of the sun, and bleached nearly white. Others were square, and stamped with strange characters.

In 1895 a Mr. Howell, walking on the beach, saw something exposed in the sand. It proved to be the corner of some large squares of beeswax weighing several tons, Many smaller blocks were also found, all bearing the stamped letters I H S. Besides these squares of wax quantitles of large candles were discovered. In looking up the matter, it was learned that as far back as records ran these tapers had been found with the wax on the shore.

Of course the explanation may be that some Oriental ship bearing church supplies for a mission farther south went to pieces on the Oregon coast many, many years ago; but what should a ship bound for Mexico or South America be doing so far north, and what use could any mission have for such an enormous quantity of wax?

Literature as a Last Resort. A novelist who lives near Indianapolis once engaged an individual who claimed to be a gardener. That this claim was without basis of fact was soon made evident to the employer, for the man proved well-nigh useless -so useless, in fact, that it became necessary to discharge him. The man took his dismissal with such jaunty indifference that the novelist was somewhat nettled. "You seem rather pleased than otherwise," said he to the man. "Oh, I ain't worryin'," was prompt response. "Indeed! Perhaps you won't do so well as you think. May I venture to inquire what you have in view?" "Well," answered the gardener, "if the worst comes to the worst, I may take ap writin' books. Sence I've been here I've found out it don't take such an awfully bright man as I used to think it did."-Lippincott's.

ton of Pittsburgh gas coal, while be ing turned into coke, will yield 90 cents worth of sulphate of ammonia, 24 cents worth of benzol, and 72 cents worth of coal tar, besides 5,000 cubic feet of gas which can be used for fuel. Assuming this last to be worth 25 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, the by-products of a ton of coal have a total value of $3.11. When the coal and coke industry is as well develop-ed as the packing industry, all these by-products—and perhaps others—will be saved.
